Care of the Critically Injured Patient

Hot Springs, AR

December 13-14, 2011

Hosted with:

St. Joseph's Mercy Health Center

We Make In-House Calls!

Program Description

This program is designed for the nurse caring for critically ill, multisystem trauma patients. The program will provide knowledge regarding mechanisms of injury in all body systems and then apply that knowledge to clinical assessment and management issues. Common complications of multisystem trauma, hemorrhagic shock, ARDS, coagulopathies and sepsis will be discussed. This seminar also serves as a review of nursing interventions, current guidelines and recommendations in each major organ system involved in trauma.

Objectives

At the completion of this course, the participant will be able to:

- Discuss the mechanisms of injury in the following areas: chest, abdomen, brain and spinal cord.
- Describe the physiology of shock and discuss the management of hemorrhagic shock in a multisystem trauma patient.
- Discuss the complications of multisystem trauma patients including sepsis, ARDS and shock.
- Describe the care of special trauma patients including burn and pregnant trauma patients.
- Discuss the psychological component for both the patient and family in regards to a traumatic injury and identify nursing interventions to assist in the psychological healing process.

Speaker

Kendra Menzies Kent, RN, MS, CCRN, CNRN

Kendra has an extensive and comprehensive knowledge base and is known for her ability to simplify complex material while maintaining audience attention. She received her BSN from the University of Texas in Arlington in 1985 and her MSN as a Clinical Nurse Specialist from Texas Women's University in 1993. Her work includes critical care education for surgical and trauma, neurosurgical and thoracic surgery ICUs. She held positions in management and was a Clinical Nurse Specialist in the SICU at Parkland Memorial Hospital in Dallas. Kendra has been a staff nurse in the Neurosurgical ICU at Harris Methodist Hospital, Ft. Worth, Texas and currently lives in Florida and works in the ICUs at St. Mary's Hospital in West Palm Beach. Kendra has presented seminars throughout the country for over 15 years. She is certified by the American Association of Critical Care Nurses, American Neuroscience Nursing and is a Fundamental Critical Care Support Instructor (FCCS) for the Society of Critical Care Medicine.
